ANNUAL SALE, TEN MILLION BOXES

In the Trade.

"A man who represents a manufacturing jeweler," said F. L. Carpenter, of New York, at the Plankinton House, "is half a salesman and half a detective. Of course all his samples are insured, but nevertheless he has to be careful not to let them get out of his sight. Ordinarily when a traveling salesman hires a man to carry his grips he has the man follow him through the streets. I make my man go on ahead of me and keep him in sight all the time. Whenever my baggage is shipped I superintend the transferring of the day, so far as I can. I have been on the road for eighteen years and have never lost a collar button—that is, from my samples—but there has not been a half hour of that time when I was awake that I did not have an eye on my goods. The surety company which guarantees the house against loss by robbery is as much my house as the firm for whom I sell goods, and at least half of my business correspondence is with them."

"One of the remarkable things in the manufacturing jewelry business in recent years is a watch made by a Paris manufacturer, after seven years' work. It records the hour, minute and second of the day, the day, month and year, making the necessary changes for leap years, the phases of the moon, the seasons, solstices, equinoxes, the time of the rising and setting of the sun and the time of the day in 125 different cities of the globe. It has a thermometer, hydrometer and barometer, and an alimeter, which measures the height above the sea level to 1,500 feet. It has a compass and a repeating chronometer, and maps of the heavens showing all the stars to the fourth magnitude in both hemispheres. If a man were cast away on a desert isle and had that watch with him he could keep track of things almost as well as a man in the finest observatory in the world. I don't know at how much the watch is valued. Probably no figure has ever been placed on it. At least it is not for sale, but is kept in a museum as an object of interest."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

An Elaborate "Card of Thanks."

The members of the Citizens' Band ask the ladies who gave the supper for the benefit of the band a Wednesday night, Aug. 9, to please accept their sincere thanks. It is the wish of every member that when these good ladies have done all the good deeds here that God would have them do, that they be gathered home to join the heavenly band, where all the joy, happiness and good music which all who live as these good ladies have lived shall enjoy, and may the influence of these good ladies ever guide the members of the Citizens' Band to a higher stand of morality and fame, and may we never cease striving until we have reached the topmost round of the ladder of fame, when God in His wisdom shall call us home, and when we have played our last tune here on earth, may we be gathered with these good ladies around God's throne, where we can play on God's instruments of gold, where our music will be sweeter, through the ceaseless ages of eternity.—Jonesboro (Ark.) Evening Sun.
